Component: Point Level Monitor Project: Protective Baffle

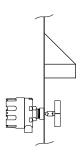

A protective baffle or deflector is required in extreme application.

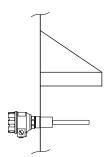

A Level Sensor install directly below an inlet, near a discharge outlet, or in other turbulent area can be damaged by the forces of the moving target material. A protective baffle or deflector will shield the sensing element from damage as a result of direct exposure to such punishing forces.

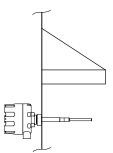

Actual construction can vary based on the available material at hand. Below is but one design.

Examples

FAQ072508

