 The New QuadraView – KVM Switch with Advanced Quad Screen View
QuadraView is our newest KVM switch. With QuadraView you can view four computers – or outputs from other KVM switches – simultaneously in real time on a single monitor. As with all KVM switches, QuadraView allows the user to interact with any of these computers while monitoring the other three. QuadraView is a perfect fit for environments where individuals need to monitor and control multiple applications such as, video editing, traffic control, network management, trading floors, flow systems, and many others. The advanced design of the QuadraView provides three viewing modes; Quad Screen, picture-in-picture (PiP) and Full Screen.

* Another Rose Exclusive...Exclusive Product Briefings

Get to know one or more our products in a pressure-free environment. Arrange some time with our Product Specialist and receive a personal briefing on any or all of our products. We will personalize the briefing to focus on the aspects of the products that most interest you. If you are a reseller, we can focus on applications and selling tips. For end users, we will accommodate your needs by addressing features, benefits and how the product can be a solution for your company. You decide how best to tailor your briefing. Our goal is to consult and inform with no sales pressure and no hassle. Briefings can be as short as 15-20 minutes or a couple of hours; again, it's up to you. Sign up for a briefing and we'll send you a Rose pen, so you can take notes in style.

Win With Rose Trivia Contest

This Month's Question...

In 1587, Philip Henslowe built a theatre on London's Bankside. Its remains were discovered in 1989. Shakespearean plays were performed here and Shakespeare was thought to have performed there as well. What is the name of this theatre?

(Hint: Not the Globe Theatre and you'll think, "I should have guessed that" once you find out the answer)

Win a Rose Carrying Case (carries anything, not just Roses)

Submit your answer in a reply to this e-mail before 12:00 AM April 30, 2005. We'll select 10 winners in a random drawing of all correct answers on May 2, 2005. Good luck! Last Month's Answer: Rose Hips (rich in vitamin C)
